No.1 script is the simplest and most versatile of our scripts. The layout makes it easy-to-read, easy-to-score and easy-to-print. If your scoring gets anything like ours, the page gets messy. No problem. Just print again and tidy your notes – you can't do that with a book!

You'll notice there is some colour. That's in case anyone wants to use the script on their computer or group-share via a projector. We assure you it prints just fine in B & W. You can save further money, as we always do, by printing double-sided. Just make sure the paper is of reasonable quality to avoid the text coming through on the other side (standard A4 80gsm office weight is perfect, though you can get away with 70gsm).

FEATURES

The most striking feature that greets you is the 'exploded' text. This allows the shape and progression of speeches to be more readily discerned. It is a practice adopted by Neil Freeman, the well-known First Folio specialist, and as also advocated by Giles Block, formerly the 'Master of the Words' at the London Globe for fourteen years under Mark Rylance. Block goes further than we can and explodes clauses and sub-clauses. We would love to follow suit but there is simply not enough space – full-play scripts would run to 1,000 pages.

Underlining the last part of a verse sentence is the second feature. Whether one line or 22, the last few words are key to the argument or its conclusion. They are never throw-away words and one must drive through to the full stop (period). Underlinings are a visual target to aim for.

The third feature is that all metrically voiced ' $-\dot{e}d$ ' verb endings are done for you. Non-voiced endings are elided, i.e. scorn'd, unless doing so would cause confusion i.e. su'd for 'sued' (in which case it will be written sue'd).

Also done for you is basic-level elision as the metre requires, i.e. desp'rate for 'desperate'. More complex ones are dealt with in no 2 & 3 scripts. Original contractions in the text like I'll, 'twere, etc., and original elisions like 'gainst, th', etc., are left as there are.

The fifth and final feature is the performance punctuation. Broadly speaking this means it's lighter and more fluid. It means fewer clunking full-stops and more colons and semi-colons to keep the argument or thought going.

We also showcase the rhetorical use of suspenseful line-endings (there is a particularly good one at 1.143.
